THE COFFEE OF UNUSUAL GOODNESS

ANNOUNCEMENT

To the Townspeople of Janesville:

For some time past the newspapers have been publishing articles dealing with a double tragedy which occurred at my Southern hacienda and because of the circumstances my name has been connected with these events to such an extent that I have had to change my name, abandon my home and wear a mask when in public.

I can prove my innocence of crime of any kind but public opinion has built up a strong barrier between me and my home so I am coming to your city to tell you, and to show you the story of my life in the hope that you will receive it sympathetically and help me to convince the world of my innocence.

Believe me to be sincerely a girl in defense of

DAILY SALAD IS URGED FOR TABLE

Importance of Green Foods
Stressed by Cooking
School Instructor.

PROGRAM THIS AFTERNOON
Discussion and their relation to healthful diet
Demonstration—
Salad dressings
Salads.

Never a day should pass without a salad of one kind or another being served, according to Mrs. Margaret L. Brown, instructor of the Gazette free cooking school, which closed Friday after four classes had been held. The entire space provided was filled each day, and it is calculated that more than 1,000 women heard the talks.

In her lecture this afternoon, Mrs. Brown stated that salads were among the most important dishes that can be served, not on account of their food value, but because they include appetizing green vegetables, contain necessary vitamins which promote health and growth.

Salads were said to be among the oldest dishes prepared, and were popular among the Romans, who used olive oil in the dressings, as it is used today.

Dressings are the important part of salads, as without them the entire dish would be tasteless, and recipes for four popular kinds of dressings were given, with suggestions for the proper preparation. Mrs. Brown served several varieties of salads, and others were displayed as examples of what may be done in making dishes look well. More economical, attractive and healthful dishes will result in many homes of the city, it is expected, as a result of Mrs. Brown's classes here. Many experienced culinary artists were among those who attended.

MANAGER NAMES NEW CITY NURSE

Miss Grace Amerpohl to Fill Important Post, Succeeding Miss Glenn.

City Manager Henry Traxler announced the appointment, Friday, of Miss Grace Amerpohl as a city nurse to succeed Miss Alice Glenn, Red Cross nurse, who is leaving Janesville Saturday for Wheaton, Ill. Miss Amerpohl is a graduate of Janesville high school, class of 1917; a graduate of Presbyterian hospital school of nurses, Chicago; and served two years as a nurse in Lakeside hospital, Cleveland.

Miss Amerpohl is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Amerpohl, 115 Clark street, Janesville. She is expected to begin her work with the city within the next few days. While it is probable she will be assigned to work in the schools, she will also co-operate with Miss Hulda Andrews, the other city nurse, in general cases outside the school, particularly during the summer.

Miss Glenn, in completing three years of service in Janesville, is taking up work with the Page County Tuberculosis association, with headquarters in Wheaton. In her work in Janesville, Miss Glenn was employed by the Red Cross until Jan. 2, 1924, when the Red Cross found itself unable to continue the office any longer and asked the city manager to take over the work.

Recognizing that the work in the schools was too important to be neglected by having the Red Cross nurse leave, Mr. Traxler offered the appointment as a second city nurse to Miss Glenn, but she declined. She previously made plans to leave Janesville. It is the manager's idea to have both Miss Andrews and Miss Amerpohl act as general city nurses, working with each other to accomplish the greatest possible good.

The car used by Miss Glenn, furnished by the Janesville Anti-Tuberculosis association, is expected to be turned over to the city nurses.

JEFF HIGH QUINT

MEETS LAKE MILLS

Jefferson — The Jefferson high school basketball team will meet the strong Lake Mills high school team Friday night at the local high school gymnasium. A fast and furious game is expected, for Jefferson lost one game and won one. Lake Mills has a strong team. They recently gave Milton a good trimming and Milton had previously beaten Janesville. The Opening of the Bowling Tournament

This day marks the opening of the state bowling tournament in Janesville. It is more than an event—it is a succession of events which will last for a month. And more than anything else it marks the highwater mark in interest as evidenced by the total number of entries.

Janesville has done more than keep a promise good. It has kept faith by both the number of entries and the amount of money provided for the success of the tournament. Half of the teams entered are from Janesville. The city has arranged for an extension of that glad hand which has given it the name of the Home of Hospitality. With scarcely an exception all organizations in the city have taken some active part in the tournament. The citizens have been prodigal in time and effort in making the tournament a statewide success. For many weeks the newspapers of the state have been printing the name of Janesville. Special stories and Associated Press dispatches from Janesville have carried the news of success of entries and the extent of the affair to all quarters of the state and nation. And now that the tournament is about to open there is yet much to do in assisting the visitors to enjoy the trip to Janesville and the 20,000 people in Janesville should constitute themselves as a reception committee for the next month.

Cold weather casualties have so far not included the summary killing of the man who always says that where he lived the atmosphere was so dry that you never noticed 40 below.

Trying to Live up to William Penn

Philadelphia is on the tip of the tongue, not because bankers of that city blessed Magnus Johnson at a banquet while he was speaking, which was rude and which added to the force of Magnus' speech and did him more good than harm, but because, as the entrenched home of the crook and the vicious, the effort to make a good police force is being watched with deepest interest. After all, it is not so much the crooks who are being driven out of the City of Brotherly Love, but the crooked police. Gen. Butler is in Philadelphia as much to reform the police force as he is to clean it of the thieves and other law violators.

Close to the office of the mayor of Philadelphia, where all who run may read, is a big bronze plate on which in large letters is inscribed the prayer offered by William Penn, father of Philadelphia, and made by him upon its establishment in 1664. It may be that few city officials ever read it and that if so they readily forgot it. But here it is:

"And thou, Philadelphia, the virgin settlement of this province, named before thou wert born, what care, what service and what travail have there been to bring thee forth and preserve thee from such as would abuse thee and defile thee."

"Oh, that thou wert kept from the evil that would overwhelm thee, that, faithful to the God of thy mercies in the life of righteousness, thou mightest be preserved until the end. My soul prays to God for thee that thou might stand in the day of trial, that thy children may be blessed of the Lord, and thy people saved by His power."

After the first excitement has worked off, it will probably be noted by the chief of police of Philadelphia, that sporadic and sensational, noisy and generally useless activity will have resulted in no real advancement toward the object sought. The enemy does not surrender as in war. It must be captured, removed permanently and made to realize that the investment in crime is not a dividend payer. Policing is a steady, hard hitting task. Its success is, above all, in the morale of the force, in the day-after-day doing that which every policeman knows must be done to keep a city safe and the public given the highest percentage of protection. Policing comes to naught when it is done by an army with banners and brass bands.

It may be mentioned here that most of the business of the circuit court has to do with civil and not criminal cases.

"Appeals to League in Vain."

"Rumana Ignoring Minority Rights: Seizing Property of Hungarians in Transylvania and Terrorizing People—APPEALS TO LEAGUE IN VAIN."—Headlines in New York Times, Pro League paper.

Then the statement follows in a Budapest dispatch that the league makes no response to the appeal. "Nowhere is Woodrow Wilson's name invoked with such bitterness as here where he is considered responsible for everything that has gone amiss," is one of the paragraphs.

In the meantime the league of nations is studying the question of Mosul, acute for four years. It is quite possible that the league will be able to reach Transylvania after all are dead or the minorities have lost their property. It is with such daring swiftness that the league works!

Some critics ask where our standing army is. Easy. It is in the street cars.—Binghamton Morning Sun.

Not here. It's lined up in front of the movies waiting for the lady to sell a ticket.

The official statement from Senator La Follette carried to Madison by Robert Jr., that there was no thought of endorsing any candidate for governor other than Elaine, will start a lot of thinking.

TRAGEDIES OF THE AIR

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

Washington—The disaster in which the French airship Dixmude was lost with fifty men aboard is the latest of a long series of tragedies of the air on both sides of the Atlantic that tend to show that in the conquest of the air man encounters mysterious forces with which he can not reckon because he does not as yet understand them. The fact of the Dixmude is unexplained, and that is true of similar disasters in which there were no survivors. The magnitude of the French loss, however, closely parallels that of this country's loss of the ZR-2 in England in August, 1921, or of the Roma at Langley field, Virginia, in February, 1922.

Indeed, while it is possible that the Dixmude may have been struck by lightning, air experts are of the opinion that it is more likely that her destruction was similar to that of the ZR-2, which she closely resembled in type. Both these ships had parallel centre sections which did not give them the structural strength afforded by streamlined hulls, the diameter of which is the largest in the middle and therefore strongest.

The ZR-2 in her trial flight over Hull, England, literally broke her back. The first quick wrench on her rudder completed the work and she collapsed, causing the explosion of the hydrogen gas which she was inflated, and forty-three American and British members of her temporary crew were killed. The Dixmude was inflated with hydrogen gas and may very well have met with the same kind of accident.

The Dixmude was the largest airship ever operated. She was known originally as the Zeppelin 122 and was intended as a raider, built to remain aloft about thirty hours, fly straight over the enemy, drop her bombs and return to her base. She was not completed until the end of the war and had not been turned over to the German government. The Zeppelin company planned to prepare her for a flight to the United States when ordered to deliver her to the French government.

Last September the Dixmude made a world's record flight, traveling 4,500 miles in 118 hours. Lieutenant de Grenadier, who was lost with her, was in command on that flight, and after it was over he reported that the giant ship was unsafe for such strenuous tests. It is reported, also, that he demurred when ordered to take her out on her last flight and said that he would not be responsible for anything that might happen to her. She left the hangar near Marseilles on December 18 and was last heard from three days later, flying ninety miles south of Biskra in North Africa. Forty-eight hours later the captain of an Italian ship picked up a wireless from an airship stating that she was being driven before a violent storm, and it is assumed that this message was from the Dixmude. On Dec. 27, a fisherman found the body of a pilot, de Grenadier six miles off the coast of Sicily.

In November, 1907, the Patrie, a non-field military blimp, broke her moorings at Verdun, whence she had flown from Paris, and drifted away, across France and the Channel, England, Wales and Ireland, and out over the Atlantic, never to be heard of again.

Two years later, the République, a sister ship somewhat larger than the Patrie, was ripped wide open by a broken propeller and fell 500 feet. There were no survivors. This accident was very similar to the disaster in which this country lost the Roma, the semi-rigid airship which the army air service had purchased from Italy. Thirty-three lives were lost when the Roma was destroyed.

There were almost a hundred Zeppelins operated by the Germans during the war and most of them met disaster in one form or another. The L-49 was compelled to come down in France when one of her engines froze, and there is the story of the loss of another Zeppelin that was a martyr to German discipline. This ship was moored near a barracks and her commander had gone into the barracks to take a nap. A sudden storm came up, but discipline was so severe that the members of the crew did not dare awaken the officer. They could do nothing without orders, so they stood by and witnessed the destruction of the ship.

One of the most romantic of the mysterious tragedies of the air was the ill-fated Polar expedition of the Swedish scientist, Prof. S. A. Andrée, and his two companions, Dr. S. T. Strindberg and Herr Fraenkel. Financed in his undertaking by a popular subscription, Andrée started from Danes Island, Spitzbergen, July 11, 1897, in a free balloon, 67 feet in diameter, with an estimated speed of from 12 to 15 miles an hour. The men were equipped for a long voyage, had food for 30 days, a lifeboat, dogskin and other paraphernalia. They expected to reach the North Pole in six days, provided they had a favoring and constant wind. Two days after the departure a message was received from Prof. Andrée's carrier pigeon, stating that they were making good progress, but they were never heard from again and several years later the search of the party failed to find a trace of them.

Then there was the fate of the American Navy blimp, C-5. While essaying the transatlantic flight in 1919, she broke from her moorings at St. John's, Newfoundland, after a successful hop from Montauk Point, Long Island, and drifted away never to be heard of again. Fortunately the crew had gone on board a supply ship to rest, leaving a single officer on guard, and the latter escaped by jumping when the blimp broke loose. The following year Lieutenants Kloor, Minton and Farrell drifted in New York into the wilds of Canada in a free balloon, escaping with their lives after many vicissitudes and when the same time a naval balloon with a full complement of officers and men drifted out of Pensacola, Florida, their fate remaining a mystery to this day.

The navy also lost a crew in the national races starting from Indianapolis, July 4, last. Lieutenants Roth and Null drifted northward and disappeared. More than a week later the balloon basket was picked up in Lake Erie. Inside was Roth's body. The last entry in the log of the flight, dated at 5 a. m., July 7, read: "All over."

During the international races last September in Belgium, six out of the seventeen balloons entered were destroyed by fire, lightning and accidents, and five pilots were killed, two being members of the United States Army team.

Of the disasters to heavier than air ships there have been so many that the mere list, with the briefest details, would fill columns. Indeed, it is doubtful whether a complete list has ever been compiled.

Among the senior senator's followers who have been harpooning the governor for months. One awaits with impatient enthusiasm the returns from Senator Severson, and a few words from Charles D. Rosa and John Dahl.

In Washington, D. C., the head of the police department is named Oyster. Yet he talks a good deal.

Pikeville, Kentucky, mayor and councilmen refuse to accept salaries. They probably think living in Pikeville is compensation enough.

It is not to be supposed that Brookhart will think much of a labor government in England since the cabinet and members wear frock coats and silk hats and soup and fish evening dress.

The fellow who says he likes cold weather, it may be noticed, is very much concerned about the cold waves.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE LUCK OF AN UNWILLING ORATOR.
I wish I would get sick and couldn't go.
I wish a fire would burn the school house down.
I wish we'd have at least ten feet of snow.
I wish I could count the stars in town.
I wish I'd get a black eye in a fight.
I got to speak a piece tomorrow night.

I wish I'd lose my pants or get 'em torn.
I wish Mr. cannot find my shirt or hat.
And, having nothing decent to wear.
She'll say: "I cannot let you go like that!"
But Mr. will have my clothes laid out, all right.
I got to speak a piece tomorrow night.

Some fellows can get sick and stay away.
Sometimes the school house burns the night before.
Bill Green once broke his leg the very day
He had to speak a piece and Jimmy Moore
Tore out his Sunday pants right where he sat,
But I don't ever have such luck as that.

Nothing I eat will make me sick today.
I couldn't get a black eye if I tried.
Mr. got my Sunday clothes all put away—
I wish I knew where my pants could hide.
But I'll be there, dressed up and frightened white.

I got to speak a piece tomorrow night.

SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. LOUIXON.

We have always loved "Ivanhoe," "Rob Roy," "The Vicomte de Bragelonne," "The Count of Monte Cristo," "Dartmouth," "Athos, Aramis and even Grimaud. We have built around these joys of youth an imaginative idealism. We go to the movies and it is destroyed.

We love music—Italian, French and German. We hear the "rhapsody" variety and recognize our favorite melodies. Something is lost.

We are getting old.

There are two kinds of people in the world—those who deliver the goods and those who "bluff." The question is which succeeds? A man may stop developing mentally at the age of 25, but his wife goes right on.

WHO'S WHO TODAY

A. A. MURPHY.
"I believe Dr. Murphy possesses more points of advantage and fewer points of attack than any of the other persons I have mentioned in presidential candidate possibilities," says William Jennings Bryan in proposing Dr. Murphy as a presidential candidate of the University of Florida, as a possibility.

Dr. Murphy's friends point out that he is a capable man, a successful college president and thoroughly acquainted with the political situation in Florida in particular and throughout the country in general but has never entered any presidential ambitions.

Dr. Albert Alexander Murphy has been a teacher since his graduation from Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., in 1892.

He was born at Walnut Grove, Ala., in 1876, and is the son of Captain Jesse B. Murphy. In 1894 he received the degree of A. B. from the University of Nashville and in 1920 the degree of L. D. from Rollins College, Fla., and from the University of Alabama.

His first teaching was in rural schools in Tennessee. Later he was Superintendent of Schools in Cullman, Ala., Principal of the Sumner (Ala.) Institute and Principal of the Cleburne (Texas) High School. In 1905 he became president of the Florida State College for Women, and in 1909 President of the University of Florida.

Dr. Murphy is a member of the Sigma Xi, Alpha fraternity and is a Mason and a Baptist. He is the editor of the Florida School Exponent.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

STRICTLY PERSONAL.
In endeavoring to account for the real or apparent increase in the prevalence of cardiovascular disease the other day (heart attack) wearing out I said that the chief causes of cardiovascular disease are of an individual nature and that public health authorities do not interest the individual in his personal hygiene. In order to illustrate what I mean let me cite a few recent examples of advice offered the public by public health authorities:

Nov. 15, 1923, the health commissioner of New York gave this advice: "Commandments to mothers who would protect their children from taking colds:

"Beware of damp feet."
"Shun excessive clothing."
"Give hot baths twice a week at night."
"Ventilate bedrooms and living rooms."
"Avoid drafts."
"Provide more oil and fat in soups with meat base."
"Use good plain food."
"Let children sleep 10 hours at least."
"Give children plenty of light white doing home work."

I submit that to tell people to ventilate rooms, and in the same breath to warn them to avoid drafts, is simply chin wagging and can do only harm, because people are willing to concede that ventilation is sufficient to remove the disease-forming "germs" and they already have an overwhelming fear of drafts—which incidentally never do any harm.

But the main fault I find with the New York health commissioner's attempt to teach personal hygiene is in what he failed to say. He failed to say a single word about the very heart of the question of the common cold, and they already have an overwhelming fear of drafts—which incidentally never do any harm.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

No. 15.
Whether or not connected with his trade or business, a loss sustained by reason of fire, storm, shipwreck, or other casualty is a deductible item. The term "other casualty" within the meaning of the statute is one which arises from the physical force of nature; for example, a flood or frost. If a taxpayer's home or automobile is destroyed by fire, or if his summer bungalow is damaged by a storm, he may claim a deduction for the loss sustained. Allowance, of course, must be made for any insurance recovered.

In event of a collision between a truck and an automobile used for pleasure or convenience, the owner of the truck may claim a deduction for damages, provided at the time the truck was being used for business purposes. No deduction is allowed for the owner of the automobile, because the car was not being used for business purposes, but rather as a "casualty," as defined above. The same rule applies to owners of automobiles used for pleasure or convenience in repairing damages thereto caused by negligent operation do not constitute deductible losses.

Losses of property by theft or burglary is deductible, also, a loss for embezzlement. Ordinarily a loss from one year and discovered in the year in which it occurred is deductible for the year in which sustained. Losses in illegal transactions are not deductible.

"That's all right," said the hard old citizen, Pap Hawkins. "I guess I'll take it standing up."

It was then that Derr shot. His bullet struck Dolly's rifle fairly between the barrel and the magazine and more than two inches from the muzzle. The heavy bullet knocked the muzzle to one side. Involuntarily Dolly pulled the trigger. The shot went wild. Before she could click in a fresh cartridge, Derr had one arm over her shoulder and under her chin, the hand of that confining arm grasping the Winchester in grip that she held. Derr, however, she was being bent forward. The bending hurt, so naturally she did her little best to mend matters.

"Never mind taking advantage of this," Pap's placid voice sounded in her ear. "Not another step. That's right. That's my sensible Mr. Hawkins. He may have shot himself occasionally. Who doesn't? But his heart's in the right place. Don't let us detain you, Mr. Hawkins."

"What? What?"

"I mean you boast that offspring of yours on to his horse, and then follow his example and go far, far away. You say you'll take you this any clench holding this young lady, you've got two more guesses: If she kicks me in the shins much more and if she ever does succeed in clenching me, I'll have to take her. I'll naturally have to let her go."

"Turn her loose!" barked Pap. "I'll take a chance!"

"Get a-goin'!" barked back Derr, losing his patience. "Fili, or I'll ventilate you my own self."

Oddly enough, this galvanized Pap into action. He seized the bleeding Hank by the collar, kicked him to his feet and flung him across his saddle.

"Gimme your foot, Hank!" he cried. "Stick it in the stirrup! Here! You ain't half as head off as you make out! I thought you had more guts! Hold your wrist up, you fool! Grab the horn with the other hand! I'll have to let her go, I say now—hang to him! Now—"

"South, Pap," said Derr. "You're going south."

"We're going north," Pap yapped angrily. "What do we want to go south for?"

"I don't know, but you were going that way when we ran across south. Don't argue about it. Go south."

Dinner Stories

A lot of us have an aversion for visiting a photographer. Perhaps, then, most of us can appreciate the feelings of an old Scotsman who had resisted all entreaties of her friends to have a photo taken but was finally induced to employ the services of a local artist in order to send her likeness to her son in the United States. On receiving the first impression she failed to recognize the figure thereon depicted as herself; so, eard in hand, she set out for the photographer's studio to ask if there wasn't a mistake.

"Is that me?" she queried.

"Yes, madam," replied the artist.

"And is it like me?" she insisted.

"Yes, madam; it's a speaking likeness."

"Awel!" she murmured, resignedly. "It's a lamblin' sight."

Dignified senators occasionally have odd chores to perform. A United States judge up in Maine did not like the location of a washbowl in the room where he usually washed his hands in the federal building. So he wrote Senator Hale and insisted that he consult one of the government architects in charge of such matters with a view to having the washbowl moved. Coming from a United States judge, the request could not be ignored.

Setting out on his important mission, the senator announced to his official force:

"I have at last found my real niche in statehouse. Such minor matters as foreign treaties and the state of the union can wait while I go down and have to determine the grave question of where Judge X— shall wash his hands."

Rub the Spine

If you believe the spine is the seat of most of your physical ills and more people are thinking so every day, just give it a gentle massage every night with Jenquin's and you will get the relief you need. Many people are getting it daily from good pharmacists.

The name is Jenquin's and it's the one big discovery for stiff joints, inflamed joints—and a tube for only 60 cents.—Advertisement.

One Out of Every Four Children Needs a Tonic

This is a horrible indictment of our modern American way of raising children—but a recent test showed that out of every four children between the ages of 5 and 15 were susceptible to colds and were easy prey to epidemics of "Flu," Diphtheria and other diseases. All because their little bodies did not have the resistance to throw off the early stages of illness. These weakened children owe their condition to their parents who allow them to eat what they want and pump them in every way.

Build up their bodies so they can resist disease.

You owe your children a sturdy body. It is your duty to see that they get it so they can combat the epidemics which are so prevalent at this time of year and which spread so rapidly in school rooms.

Jenquin's Ext. Cod Liver Oil Pills.

The best children's tonic is cod liver oil. Everyone knows that. Now you can give it in pill form without the odor and taste of the oil. They are just as pleasant to take as candy. This tonic builds strength and health quickly. Start today. You can quickly have your child in shape to stand the winds, snow and cold of the winter months.

Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and destroy the dandruff. As the dandruff sign and trace of it no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and it never fails to do the work.—Advertisement.

Cocoon Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Multi-faceted coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing. This cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of creamy suds. Rub the hair and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The latter rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dirt, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and naturally. It leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, and easy to manage.

You can get Multifaceted coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

PEOPLE BETRAYED BY BLAINE, CHARGE OF BOARDS' CHIEF

legislative leaders by the legislature and governor, was expressed in many talks during the convention and especially in President Davis' closing address, in which he said, in part:

"This association of county politicians, betrayed by the legislature and by Governor Blaine, and I regret that stronger expressions were not used in forming our resolutions. We come directly from the people. We are in closer contact than are legislators and we know what the people want, and yet the legislature and the governor, in the face of the most solemn state, betrayed us and the taxpayers, refused to reduce taxes or to adopt reasonable suggestions, for maintenance of highways and to relieve the burden upon the people."

"Political Quackery, Charge
"I want you to take this message home and to tell it to your meetings. Ask the people if we are to submit to be governed by a handful of politicians. If we are to be made the playthings of politicians we might as well quit. I defy the governor to give true explanation why he vetoed the Valley and River Valley bills. He has never given the real reason and I defy him to do so."

"I am not talking politics, but as the representative of the people who do not care for facades or parties as much as for good government. This association does not consist of politicians. We eliminate politics in our deliberations, and there is no party in the room."

Consider Institutions
The convention devoted yesterday to considering county institutions, addresses being made by W. E. Whitling, Fond du Lac county; J. D. Christie, Waushara; F. S. Trucks, Jefferson county and C. K. Pettigall, La Crosse county, most mention being given to financing of highways, which was deemed a most serious problem.

LA FOLLETTE RAIL BILL DOOMED TO DIE IN COMMITTEE

BOTH REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRAT LEADERS IN ACCORD.

DOUBT LEGALITY

Railroad Legislation Held Improbable at This Congress Session.

By RANSON N. TIMMONS
Washington—Senator La Follette's bill amending the Esch-Cummins transportation act has no chance of enactment in the 68th congress. Both republican and democratic leaders today agreed upon that.

As a matter of fact the bill has no chance of being reported out of the interstate commerce committee, presided over by Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, elected by La Follette's vote.

Whatever may be the other objections to the La Follette amendment, the principal and deciding one is that most members of the Senate believe that it is unconstitutional.

What Would Happen
If there were no other objection to the La Follette bill and Congress were to enact it, the constitutionality and passed it, here is what probably would happen.

The La Follette amendment proposes to lay down a rule for fixing value on which to make rates. The rule practically in substance has been rejected by the Supreme Court.

It could fix the value they chose and upon being prosecuted would set up the unconstitutionality of the law. The Supreme Court would then reverse itself in a long line of decisions would uphold the constitutionality of the law. In the meantime with the La Follette bill the existing rate making law would be repealed.

Then the supreme court's decision holding the La Follette bill unconstitutional would leave the railroads without any regulations whatever. They could make such rates as they pleased. It is certain that Congress does not care to gamble to that extent.

No Rail Legislation
There will be no railroad legislation of any sort at this session of congress. Democrats as well as republicans are agreed on that. As a matter of fact, although Senator Smith was elected chairman of the interstate commerce committee because of his opposition to the Esch-Cummins bill, the majority of the committee present and voting when the bill became law voted for it.

Fifteen democrats voted for the Esch-Cummins law, including Senator Robinson of Arkansas, democratic leader. Three more democrats were paired for it, six democrats they favored it, making 21 democrats in all favoring it. Republican democrats voted against the bill, four were paired against it and five more were paired but their position not announced.

Nonpartisan Measure
In the cold light of history the Esch-Cummins bill is about as nonpartisan a measure as was ever placed on the statute books. It was passed by a republican congress, with strong democratic support, and signed by Woodrow Wilson, democratic president.

The sentiment in favor of the present transportation act has been growing in recent months, following an early reaction against it. The decision in the celebrated Dayton-Goose Creek case last week has done more to popularize the law than any other factor. The Dayton-Goose Creek railroad, an obscure line in Texas, attacked the provisions of the Esch-Cummins act, giving the government half of any profits over 6 per cent made by the railroads on their investment. The highest court line railroads in the country rallied to the support of the little Texas railroad to fight this provision of the law. Under the court's decision, the railroads lost and the government won.

Williams to Treasury
During speeches in Wisconsin last summer Senator Irvine L. Williams asserted that if the government's contention was sustained it would make the Esch-Cummins law the most progressive railroad act ever written, in that it takes from the roads one-half of all their earnings over 6 percent, in addition to taking from the roads all ordinary taxes.

Under this supreme court decision millions of dollars will be paid into the government's treasury by prosperous roads such as the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Santa Fe and other prosperous lines. Millions of this money already has been earned.

Some of the amounts that must be turned over immediately by the railroads to the government is $1,126,647, earned by 32 railroads in

PUT OFF THY SHOES FROM OFF THY FEET

COMMENT ON THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR JANUARY 20, 1924.

Read Exodus 1 to 12.
WM. SOUTHERN, JR.

Recent excavations in Egypt have brought to light records of the time when the Hebrews were slaves in Egypt. A brief reference to the Egyptian histories has been found in these records, just enough to verify by the Egyptian histories the Hebrew accounts.

It would be interesting to have the Egyptian side of the exodus. No doubt it would be very different from the account we have from the Hebrew viewpoint as recorded in the Bible. Some day these records will be available and it will not be heresy for us to compare one account with the other.

In the lesson comments printed a week ago we left the Hebrews well-companied in Egypt. Joseph, the Prime Minister, was one of them. They were given the best lands and lived in prosperity for many years.

Then there came a change in the administration in Egypt. The Hyksos kings, who were ruling when Joseph lived, were overthrown. The native Egyptians regained control of the country and the Ramesses dynasty was in the saddle. The new rulers had no reason whatever to favor the aliens within their hands. These aliens had never become naturalized and lived apart and had an entirely different religion. We in the United States today are demanding that every man and woman who comes to this country from another become an American citizen as quickly as possible. We do not assume to control their religion, but we do expect them to become citizens. I am very sure that this policy is correct and that people who come here to make fortunes, to enjoy our peace and prosperity, should become a part of our own people.

Great leaders in times of stress never just "happen so." Christians believe that God provides leaders in war and women who come to this country. He does not just pick up some fellow at random from the pool of men or from among the cake eaters, he prepares the man or woman for leadership.

Abraham and his people trekked down into Egypt and there remained for 400 years. It was now time for God to fulfill his promise to Abraham and God had promised. A leader was needed and God provided that leader in Moses. Such a leader must be raised and educated, so Moses was made the adopted son of the Pharaoh's daughter. He was educated in the temples. The priesthood ruled Egypt and held all the education known in Egypt. Moses went to school, became a neophyte and passed through all the mysteries of initiation. He received all the degrees and was eligible as a ruler.

Then came the time for his further education and he fled from Egypt and landed with the Midianites who lived on the Sinai peninsula. Here he fell in with Jethro, the High Priest of the Midianites, probably a descendant of Midian, the son of Abraham and Keturah, the woman Abraham married after Sarah died. The Midianites were as truly the descendants of Abraham as the Hebrews.

The education of Moses continued for another forty years. Instead of

COUNCIL TO FIX SALARIES SOON

Schedule for 50 City Employees To Be Adopted Next Month.

Salaries of some 50 city workers, from the city manager down the list, are due to be fixed by the city council for 1924 at its first meeting in February, which falls on the 11th. It is possible an informal meeting will be held prior to this session to go over the salary list and decide on changes, but this has not been definitely determined.

While Janesville is operating under the city manager form of government, the matter of salary fixing is still in the council's hands, it being considered a legislative question and not executive. While City Manager Henry Traxler may have some recommendations to make to the council, that body may use its discretion in fixing salaries.

While the entire matter of salaries has not been given any serious consideration yet by the council as a whole, it is understood a number of changes are contemplated. That there will be some reductions is almost a certainty, and it is possible some will receive increases. Policemen are now receiving from $115 to $125 a month, while regular firemen's salaries range from $125 to $135. No talk has been heard of any proposed changes in these departments.

SANITARY INSPECTOR CAUSES ARREST OF 2

Charged with failure to provide sewer and water connections for houses at 423 and 425 North Pine street owned by them, Emil Ganger and J. J. Cunningham were arraigned in municipal court Thursday, the complaint being made by Dr. L. J. Woodworth, city sanitary inspector.

Both cases were held open. It is alleged water and sewer mains are available on the street but the houses continue to have outside toilets.

Robert Streeter, taxi driver, was fined $12.40 for speeding on Main street. Walter Bidwell, taxi operator, pleaded not guilty to a charge of speeding on Franklin street, and his trial was set for Jan. 21.

CLEAR SNOW FROM ICE ON RIVER

Five men and four teams with scrapers were employed in the work. The scrapers are equipped with carrying boxes having a capacity of about 90 cubic feet of snow.

SOOT TURNS SPARROW INTO BABY BLACKBIRD
A group of people were examining what appeared to be a tame baby blackbird in the walk near the First National Bank building Thursday morning. Upon close observation it proved to be an English sparrow blackened by soft coal soot from roosting in chimneys.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIRS DARK

Community club will meet Friday with Mrs. Mary Alwyn—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Heshaw and family, Rockford, spent Sunday at the Raymond Snyder home.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mays the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it dardens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.—Advertisement.

THE plans of three months ago, and the gathering together in our seventeen stores of the many carloads of furniture and rugs bought since the plans were made, have resulted in THE GREATEST COLLECTION OF WORTHWHILE FURNITURE IN OUR HISTORY. Manufacturers of some of America's finest lines have made concessions to us, even to the extent of making some lines exclusive with us. ALL OF THIS WAS BOUGHT FOR SEVENTEEN STORES, and being one of a very few firms able to buy in such large quantities, WE GOT ROCK BOTTOM PRICES. Now we pass on to you THE BIGGEST SAVINGS OF THE SEASON.

RUGS

$65 Bussorahs, 9x12 $46.75

The most popular rug woven by the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Co. This lot of axminsters are subject to slight imperfections, which in almost every case are only visible to the practiced mill examiner. In no case does the imperfection impair the wearing qualities of the rug. A most wonderful bargain.

$55 Seamless Velvets $39.75

If there is the slightest misweave in any Rug of Bigelow-Hartford make, the examiners reject them and call them imperfect. They are then sold at a liberal discount. That's what these Seamless Velvets are, lovely patterns, fringe ends, with wearing qualities just as good as the perfect rug. The earlier you come the better the selection.

$65 Lucerne Velvets $46.50

A group of rugs from Stephen Sanford, 9x12, all perfect. We were fortunate enough to secure these numbers direct from the mill on account of the fact that these patterns will not be made again. Everything in this group is a faithful reproduction of finest orientals in soft harmonious colorings. The quantity is limited, so plan to make your selection early.

Table Lamps

By all means you should select one of these table lamps with other furniture. Note the charming effect in the use of the lamp in the illustration. A fine assortment to choose from at a very low price.
